PTK All-State Academic Team

Once again, two students from PC have made it onto the All-California Academic Team. Sarah Mosqueda made the All-California First Team ranking her one of the top 25 community college students in all of California. Joseph Baeza made the All-California Third Team ranking him among the top 75 students in California community colleges.

PC is very proud of these two students and congratulate them on their academic achievements. They have worked hard to maintain academically rigorous coursework, outstanding GPAs, they participate in community service events, and are working at the same time.

A ranger explains the jail and guardhouse to PC student Lucie Gonzalez and Professor Emeritus Richard Osborne. Fort Tejon was built in 1854 in the Tehachapi mountains just south of the entrance to the Grapevine from the San Joaquin Valley on Highway 1-5. It remained in use until 1864. The fort served an important role in the early years of California, providing a military presence to maintain order in a region awash with gold miners and settlers but also large Native American populations, including those on the nearby Sebastian Reservation. Anthro Club visited the fort to better understand this period and this place, so easy to miss right alongside the highway (photos by Professor Robert Simpkins).
